The second strongest earthquake ever recorded in the eastern region of the Mediterranean Sea has hit the Syrian-Turkish border.

Malteser International has sent an emergency relief team to the affected region.

The situation is dramatic. The rescue of the buried people is difficult, and health facilities are overloaded. The cold temperatures, snow and rain are not only complicating rescue efforts, but also the situation for the people in camps along the Turkish-Syrian border. The people need help quickly.

The donations will be transferred to Malteser International, the worldwide humanitarian relief agency of the Sovereign Order of Malta.
